What is redistricting?

After the 2020 Census, Kentucky will draw new maps to show which parts of the state elect each member of the Kentucky House, Kentucky Senate, and U.S. House of Representatives. That process is called redistricting, and it is likely to change the districts that represent you and others in Oldham County.

How can we estimate population changes before the 2020 Census?

The American Community Survey, conducted by the Census Bureau, provides county population estimates each year. Using the 2018 data, this County Estimate Report gives an initial idea of what is happening in your county and how redistricting may affect your area.

Looking at the big picture, what are the estimated population changes from 2010 to 2018?

- The fifty-state population increased 5.9%, adding an estimated 18,321,164 people.
- The Kentucky population increased 3.0%, adding an estimated 129,035 people.
- For the northern counties between I-65 and I-75 as a group, population increased 6.9%, adding an estimated 30,175 people. (That northern group includes Nelson, Washington, Boyle, Garrard, and counties further north.)
- Nearby, for counties along I-65 as a group, population increased 5.5%, adding an estimated 62,595 people.
- For Oldham and other counties that share your Senate and House districts, estimated changes are shown on the next page.

For Oldham County's Senate seat, what are the estimated changes?

When Kentucky used 2010 Census data to redistrict, each Senate seat needed between 108,484 and 119,904 people. If we used the 2018 estimates, each seat would need to be larger, with between 111,710 and 123,469 people. With estimated population growth in both counties, Senate District 26 may be within the allowed size range for a Kentucky Senate seat, perhaps with some changes to the included Jefferson precincts. Here are the numbers for each county in the district:

COUNTIES INCLUDED IN SENATE DISTRICT 26
County	2010 Count	2018 Estimate	Change	% Change
Jefferson	741,096	770,517	29,421	4.0%
Oldham	60,316	66,470	6,154	10.2%
Total	801,412	836,987	35,575	4.4%

For Oldham County's House seats, what are the estimated changes?

When Kentucky used 2010 Census data, each House seat needed between 41,224 and 45,563 people. With 2018 estimates, each seat would need to be between 42,450 and 46,918 people. Oldham County is served by four House seats. Both Oldham and Jefferson have robust estimated population growth, making redistricting changes likely. Again, here are the county-by-county numbers:

JEFFERSON AND OLDHAM HOUSE DISTRICTS
County	District	2010 Count	2018 Estimate	Change	% Change
Jefferson	28 29 30 31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 40 41 42 43 44 46 48	741,096	770,517	29,421	4.0%
Oldham	33 36 48 59	60,316	66,470	6,154	10.2%
Total		801,412	836,987	35,575	4.4%
